Tips for a safe, happy Halloween

Get the facts

Did you know the biggest threat to children on Halloween is cars? Children on foot, between the ages of 4 and 15, are four times more likely to get hit on this night, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention.

It's easy for children — caught up in the fun of the night — to trip, fall or dash into the street. That's why it's important to know and use basic safety tips. They can help lower your child's risk.

Safety basics

Costume

- Choose a costume with bright colors. Or stick on reflective tape. Masks should also be easy to see out of.
- Stay away from sharp objects. Play swords and wands are great. But go for materials like foam, not metals or hard plastics.
- Remove any item that could cause choking or a fall. In all the excitement, ropes, cords or fabric strips can easily get in the way.

Trick or treating

- Go to or throw a party instead. You avoid street traffic and "stranger danger."
- Travel in groups. The rule to go by is one adult to every four kids. Explain to children they must stay together. Holding hands helps. Also, stick to neighborhoods you know and carry a flashlight.
- Cross at corners or crosswalks. Children should always cross with an adult and never run.
- Tell kids it's never okay to go in a stranger's home. Let kids know that if a stranger says come in for candy, the answer is always "no, thank you."

Candy and pumpkin carving

- Carefully check the candy. Make sure it is well sealed. Also, look at the size and ingredients. Be certain there is nothing your child is allergic to or will choke on.
- Stop tummy troubles before they start. Only give your child a few pieces or one serving size of candy at a time.
- Leave pumpkin carving to the adults. Let your child draw the designs and then you can cut them out. Also, only adults should handle any matches or candles.
